organized by
Internal Quality Assurance Cell, Loreto College
on
August 10, 2022

The Internal Quality Assurance Cell of Loreto College had organized a talk on ‘Richness of College Life’ on August 10, 2022 at 8.30 a.m. The speaker was Ms. Devika Chirimar, a former student of the college and currently pursuing Ph.D in Georgetown University. The target audience was students of Semester 3. Her deliberations harped on the importance of listening to lectures and being inquisitive. She spoke about the optimal student-teacher ratio in Loreto College which made it easier to learn and interact with the faculty. She highlighted the fact that Loreto College teaches organizational skills and the inculcates the importance of meticulous planning along with perseverance. She related some of her own experiences to prove how being an active member of Student Council helped her create a more balanced college life and how inter-college competitions act as a way to grow and build networks. The students interacted very enthusiastically and effectively. It was a very enriching session.

Learning Objectives:

- To help the students gain insight about balancing academics and other co-curricular activities in college
- To explore their organizational skills and develop their personalities
- To reflect on their goals and work towards the achievement of their goals

Learning Outcomes:

At the end of the session, the students were able to:

- To understand the importance of engagement within and outside the classroom
- To understand the essence of college life and realize their goals and values
- To realize the importance of humility, sincerity, gratitude, hard work and respect for self and others to improve one's quality of life now and in future.
